LING 502/ FREN 517 - French Linguistics
Credits: 3
The structure, morphology, and syntax of modern French.

LING 503/GERM 515 - Introduction to German Linguistics
Credits: 3
Structural and descriptive linguistics applied to the German language.

Prerequisites  Consent of Instructor

LING 504/SPAN 515 - Introduction to Spanish Linguistics
Credits: 3
Phonology, morphology, and syntax of modern Spanish.

LING 505 - Interdisciplinary Topics in Linguistics
Credits: 3
Topics selected by the instructor for specialized study. Course content varies and will be announced in the schedule of classes by suffix and title. May be repeated with different suffix.

LING 512/FREN 516 - French Phonology
Credits: 3
The sound system and its functioning in the morphological system of French from the point of view of current phonological theory.

LING 514/SPAN 517 - Contrastive English-Spanish Phonetics and Phonology
Credits: 3
Introduction to the study of phonetics and phonology and their application to the sounds and sound systems of English and Spanish. Includes transcription practice and discussion of relevance to teaching.

LING 521/ENGL 550 – Advanced English Grammar
Credits: 3
Practical survey of the syntactic structures of English; usage, social and regional variation emphasis on data.

LING 530 - Language Change
Credits: 3
Major ways in which phonetics, phonology, syntax, morphology, and semantics change through language history; social factors which promote innovation.

LING 540 - Topics in Language and Culture
Credits: 3
Introduction to sociolinguistic issues, focusing on a single language. Course content varies and will be announced by suffix and title. May be repeated twice as topics vary.
LING 541/ANTH 555/WGST 555 - Language and Gender
Credits: 3
Approaches to gender and language emphasizing the social grounding of both; how language reflects sociocultural values and is a tool for constructing different types of social organization.

LING 542/ANTH 556 - Language and Colonialism
Credits: 3
Anthropological approach to issues of language and colonialism in comparative perspective. Linguistic consequences of colonialism under consideration include communicative patterns, linguistic change, and the linguistic choices of post-colonial writers.

LING 543/ANTH 586 - Discourse, Gender, and Politics of Emotion
Credits: 3
Anthropological approach to issues of discourse, gender, and emotion. Issues under consideration include the social control, force, and forms of emotional discourse and the relationship between emotion and culture from gender-oriented perspectives.

LING 545/ANTH 553 - Anthropological Approaches to Narrative and Performance
Credits: 3
The ways people from various cultures reflect on, reinforce, and construct their social realities through narrating, which will be considered as both artistic expression and social action.

LING 554/SPAN 516 - The Structure of Modern Spanish
Credits: 3
Description of the grammatical structures of Modern Spanish. Intensive study of the theory and practice of word formation and sentence structure of Spanish.

LING 565/PHIL 517 - Philosophy of Language
Credits: 3
An examination of concepts and problems such as meaning, reference, analyticity, definition, and the relation between logic and philosophy.

Prerequisites PHIL 202 or consent of the instructor

LING 567/PSYC 506 - Psychology of Language
Credits: 3
Theories of speech perception, linguistic theories of syntax and semantics, the brain mechanisms underlying language, the development of language in children, and the role of language in thought.

Prerequisites consent of instructor

LING 570/COMD 570 - Introduction to Language Development
Credits: 3
The language acquisition process in normal children, including the development of semantics, morphology, syntax, phonology, and pragmatics; American dialects and bilingualism.
Prerequisites permission of instructor

LING 600/ENGL 680 - Survey of Linguistics
Credits: 3
Major approaches to language study and linguistics related to other disciplines; required as first course for any program of study in linguistics.

LING 627 - Introduction to Semantics
Credits: 3
An introduction to the study of linguistic meaning, including the following topics: meaning, reference, and truth; the connections among language, thought, and reality; word meaning and sentence meaning; possible worlds and modality; thematic roles; meaning

Prerequisites LING 300, 301, or 600

LING 650 - Introduction to Morphology
Credits: 3
Foundations of generative morphology, focusing on morphological data collection and analysis; the structure of the lexicon; and the interfaces between morphology and phonology, semantics, and syntax.

Prerequisites LING 300, 301, or 600

LING 710 - Introduction to Phonology
Credits: 3
The phonetic basis of phonology; phonological structure; lexical representation; cross-linguistic survey of major types of phonological processes; emphasis on data analysis.

Prerequisites LING 300, 301, or 600 or permission of instructor

LING 711 - Phonological Theory
Credits: 3
Advanced study of theoretical issues in phonology.

Prerequisites LING 600 and 610

LING 715 - Applied English Phonetics
Credits: 3
Introduction to the study of English phonetics. Covers basic concepts of acoustic phonetics, properties of English speech sounds, and their acoustic variability in varying types of linguistic context.

LING 720 - Introduction to Syntax
Credits: 3
Foundations of generative grammar, focusing on the syntax of English; universal principles of basic clause structure and derived constructions; emphasis on syntactic argumentation and cross-linguistic generalization.
Prerequisites LING 300, 301, or 600 or permission of instructor

LING 721 - Syntactic Theory
Credits: 3
Advanced exploration of a principled model of the syntactic component of universal grammar and the interface between this module and semantic interpretations and lexical information. Competing hypotheses are compared.

Prerequisites LING 600 and 720

LING 728/PHIL 719 - Formal Semantics
Credits: 3
The formal study of linguistic meaning, including the following topics: Fregean truth-conditional semantics; lexical decomposition; predication, modification, and definite descriptions; generalized quantification; intentional and extensional contexts; ten

Prerequisites LING 600 or 627

LING 730 - Historical Linguistics
Credits: 3
Innovation in phonology, morphology, syntax, and semantics; evidence from texts, social and regional dialects; emphasis on theories of language change.

Prerequisites LING 600 and 710

LING 731/ENGL 781 - History of English Language
Credits: 3
The historical background of Modern English with attention to the major linguistic and cultural developments which distinguish English from other related languages. No prior knowledge of Old English or Middle English is required.

LING 732/FREN 715 - History of the French Language
Credits: 3
Development of the French language from its origins to 1600.

LING 733/GERM 705 - History of the German Language
Credits: 3
Relationship of German to the other Germanic languages. Phonological and morphological development of German. Attention also to syntax, vocabulary, and dialects.

LING 734/SPAN 715 - History of the Spanish Language
Credits: 3
Development of the language from its origins to the present day.
LING 739 - The Evolution of Linguistic Theory, Practice, and Methods
Credits: 3
Introduces basic resources of discipline and focuses on the development of linguistics in terms of dominant issues and analytical methodology with emphasis on paradigm shifts.

Prerequisites LING 600, 710, 720

LING 740 - Introduction to Sociolinguistics
Credits: 3
An examination of choices speakers in the same community make between styles, dialects, and languages; their association with social group memberships; speakers’ perceptions of interpersonal relationships.

Prerequisites Prereq or coreq: LING 600

LING 742/ANTH 756 - Analysis of Conversation
Credits: 3
Types of interactive organization found within conversation and the methods and procedures used by participants to achieve order.

LING 744 - Language Contact Phenomena
Credits: 3
The structural effects of contact between speakers of more than one language on the language involved. Borrowing, code-switching, convergence, language death, development of pidgins and creoles.

Prerequisites LING 600

LING 745/ENGL 782 - Varieties of American English
Credits: 3
Social and regional variation in American English since the colonial period.

LING 747/ANTH 747 - Language as Social Action
Credits: 3
Examines language as a social, cultural, and political matrix. Topics include ideology, gender, race, power, agency, and resistance. Students will apply linguistic theories in their own analyses of everyday speech.

LING 765/PHIL 718 - Studies in Philosophy of Language
Credits: 3
Examination of concepts such as meaning, reference, analyticity, and translational indeterminacy; evaluation of accounts of speech acts, the semantics of propositional attitudes, and metaphor and other pragmatic phenomena.

LING 772/EDTE 772/FORL 772 - Technology in Foreign Language Education
Credits: 3
Introduction to technology in language teaching and the connection between language acquisition and the implementation of Internet and multimedia technology.

LING 780 - Discourse Analysis
Credits: 3
Underlying principles of how phonological, syntactic, and lexical features are organized above the sentence level; alternative choices of these features and how they contribute to the speaker’s/writer’s goals.

Prerequisites LING 600

LING 781/ENGL 788 - Stylistics
Credits: 3
Linguistic analysis of literary texts. Linguistic definition of style; stylistic choices as the author’s voice.

LING 790 - Second Language Acquisition
Credits: 3
Study of current theory and research in second language acquisition and exploration of relationships between such work and classroom second language learning and teaching. Examination of research techniques used in applied linguistics.

Prerequisites or co-requisites: LING 600

LING 791 - Theory and Methodology in Second Language Acquisition
Credits: 3
Current issues and research in adult second language acquisition, with special attention to developments in theory and to methodological issues and considerations.

Prerequisites LING 600, 790

LING 795 - Principles and Strategies for Teaching ESOL
Credits: 3
Survey of teaching ESOL, including theoretical principles and practical strategies for approaches, methods, techniques, and materials as they concern elementary, secondary, and postsecondary learners.

LING 796/EDRD 796 - Teaching Reading and Writing to ESOL Learners: Theory and Practice
Credits: 3
This course surveys research on the mental processes and linguistic contexts involved in reading and writing in a second language. Pedagogical implications for elementary, secondary, and postsecondary learners are discussed.

LING 797/FORL 772 - Technology in Foreign Language Education
Credits: 3
Introduction to technology in language teaching and the connection between language acquisition and the application of Internet and multimedia technologies.

LING 798 - Practicum in Teaching ESOL
Credits: 3
Observation and supervised teaching of English to speakers of other languages in an individually designed classroom setting.

Prerequisites LING 600, 795
May not be taken by M.A. or Ph.D. students as part of their required courses.

LING 799 - Thesis Preparation
Credits: 1-9

LING 805 - Topics in Linguistics
Credits: 3
Topics selected by the instructor for specialized study. May be repeated with different suffix.

LING 806 - Directed Reading and Research
Credits: 1-3

LING 820 - Seminar in Syntax
Credits: 3
Advanced exploration in syntactic theory, involving either cross-theoretical examination of specific linguistic phenomena or in-depth study of a particular theoretical model.

Prerequisites consent of instructor

LING 830 - Seminar in Historical Linguistics
Credits: 3
Special topics in historical and comparative linguistics, such as historical phonology or syntax, Indo-European linguistics, and comparative Germanic or Romance linguistics.

Prerequisites consent of instructor

LING 840 - Seminar in Language Variation
Credits: 3
Current theories relevant to specialized consideration of the social functions of linguistic choices at any level of analysis; variation as a reflection of region and social group membership or interpersonal relationships.

Prerequisites consent of instructor

LING 890 - Seminar in Language Acquisition
Credits: 3
Special topics in the acquisition of language such as first language acquisition of English or other languages, cross-linguistic effects on acquisition, or issues in acquisition theory.

Prerequisites consent of instructor

LING 891 - Seminar in English for Speakers of Other Languages (ESOL)
Credits: 3
Special topics in teaching English to speakers of other languages (ESOL), such as materials design, program design and evaluation, or teaching a particular language skill.

Prerequisites consent of instructor

LING 899 – Dissertation hours

Prerequisites consent of instructor